

Test your knowledge on structured thinking

1. What is the term for the specific area of analysis that encompasses every activity affecting or affected by a problem?

0 / 1 point

- ☒ Problem context
- ☐ Problem scope
- ☐ Problem domain
- ☐ Problem structure

✗ Incorrect

The problem domain is the specific area of analysis that encompasses every activity affecting or affected by a problem.

2. What are the key elements of structured thinking? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 point

- ☐ Implement a solution
- ☒ Organize available information

✔ Correct

Structured thinking is the process of recognizing the current problem or situation, organizing available information, revealing gaps and opportunities, and identifying the options.

- ☒ Recognize the current problem or situation

✔ Correct

Structured thinking is the process of recognizing the current problem or situation, organizing available information, revealing gaps and opportunities, and identifying the options.

- ☒ Reveal gaps and opportunities

✔ Correct

Structured thinking is the process of recognizing the current problem or situation, organizing available information, revealing gaps and opportunities, and identifying the options.

3. Fill in the blank: A scope of work is an agreed-upon _____ of the work you're going to perform on a project.

1 / 1 point

- ☒ outline
- ☐ diagram
- ☐ report
- ☐ to-do list

✔ Correct

A scope of work is an agreed-upon outline of the work you're going to perform on a project.

4. What are some strategies data professionals use to help ensure they work with data that is accurate and fair? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 point

☒ Collect data in an impartial manner

✔ Correct

To ensure accurate and fair data, ensure an accurate representation of the population, collect data in an impartial manner, and consider different viewpoints before drawing conclusions.

☐ Maintain objectivity by not asking where the data originated

☒ Ensure an accurate representation of the population in a sample

✔ Correct

To ensure accurate and fair data, ensure an accurate representation of the population, collect data in an impartial manner, and consider different viewpoints before drawing conclusions.

☒ Consider different viewpoints before drawing conclusions

✔ Correct

To ensure accurate and fair data, ensure an accurate representation of the population, collect data in an impartial manner, and consider different viewpoints before drawing conclusions.