

Test your knowledge on listening, responding, and including

1. After you finish a presentation, an audience member asks for additional information. As you are providing a thorough response, the rest of the audience seems disinterested. How can you re-engage them? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 point

☒ Redirect to a new question

✔ Correct

If the audience is losing interest, redirect to a new question or ask a question to your audience to re-engage them.

☐ Repeat the question

☐ Interrupt yourself during your response

☒ Ask a question to the audience

✔ Correct

If the audience is losing interest, redirect to a new question or ask a question to your audience to re-engage them.

2. Fill in the blank: A presentation's _____ slide is a place to include information that is too detailed for the presentation, but could be useful for answering people's questions.

1 / 1 point

☐ transition

☐ closing

☒ appendix

☐ title

✔ Correct

A presentation's appendix slide is a place to include information that is too detailed for the presentation, but could be useful for answering people's questions.

3. What steps can you take to ensure you answer questions thoroughly? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 point

☒ Repeat the question to clarify

✔ Correct

To ensure you answer questions thoroughly, listen to the full question and repeat the question to clarify.

☐ Elaborate more on the topic

☐ Provide more context

☒ Listen to the full question

✔ Correct

To ensure you answer questions thoroughly, listen to the full question and repeat the question to clarify.

4. After a presentation, you are asked a complex question during the Q&A session. It will require a few hours of research for you to answer effectively. How should you proceed?

1 / 1 point

☒ Follow up promptly after the Q&A session

✔ Correct

If you are asked a complex question that requires research to answer, ask for some time to find the answer, then follow up promptly.

☒ Ask for some time to find the answer

✔ Correct

If you are asked a complex question that requires research to answer, ask for some time to find the answer, then follow up promptly.

☐ Politely explain that the question is irrelevant to your findings

☐ Provide a brief response to the question during the Q&A session