

Let's get down to business

Hey, great to have you back. Now it's time to get down to business. We're going to start talking about practical ways businesses are using data, and the opportunities that it can create for you. So far, you've learned a lot of practical data analysis skills. With these next couple of videos, we're going to switch gears a little and talk about why you're learning these skills. Hopefully this will give you more perspective into what kinds of opportunities are out there for you. Coming up, we're going to talk more about the kinds of roles data analysts play in different industries. The task that these roles required, and the importance of fairness and avoiding bias and analyzing data for business tasks. We'll also talk about opportunities you can tap into, and how this program factors into your future success and the data analyst role. So with all that in mind, let's get started.